Message from the October 2011 Chairwomen of the Month

Do you know what the Interbranch Council is?

Our Los Gatos – Saratoga AAUW branch is part of the Interbranch Council of Santa Clara County which includes six other branches in the County: Gilroy, Los Altos/Mountain View, Morgan Hill, Palo Alto, San Jose, and Sunnyvale/Cupertino. The Interbranch Council (IBC) meets five times during the year to discuss what's working well within the branches, suggest alternatives for what's not working, and share information about upcoming branch programs and events. One of the California State AAUW directors acts as liaison with the State organization.

Each June IBC hosts an ice cream social for all the Tech Trek campers at the San Jose AAUW headquarters in the Willow Glen neighborhood, and every other year IBC sponsors a speaker or program that is open to all the branches. The role of IBC Chair rotates among the seven branches and is currently held by the Los Altos/Mountain View branch.

Please make your reservations for the Teppan Lunch and Obon Dancers (see the front page for details). This is the fundraiser for the Local Scholarship Committee and the funds raised make a difference to West Valley Women seeking assistance in furthering their education. I hope to see you at the Teppan Lunch on Sunday, October 16.

Take a few minutes to check out the upcoming events that you can attend and where you can make a difference (they are listed in the next column).

About the Authors of Women's Ways of Leading, Dr. Linda Lambert and Mary Gardner

For two decades, Linda Lambert and Mary Gardner have worked together as colleagues, friends and co-authors on books about leadership. They served in top-level leadership positions, engaged in research on women and leadership, consulted internationally, and mentored the next generation of women leaders.

Lambert and Gardner's work with constructivist leadership, leadership capacity, and women's leadership is creating new patterns of relationships among individuals and within organizations, resulting in the fuller democratization of leadership. Such democratization ensures a resilient and replenishing fabric of leadership, the essence of sustainability.

Mary Gardner is the former superintendent of the Saratoga Union School District (Saratoga, California), a visiting practitioner at Harvard University, and a professor of educational leadership. She consults with non-profit organizations and has served on five boards of directors.

Dr. Linda Lambert is also lead author of Who Will Save Our Schools?, three books on leadership capacity and dozens of articles. She worked to set up community schools for girls in Egypt and advised organizations in Canada, England, Malaysia, Thailand, Australia, Mexico, and throughout the United States. A former social worker, school principal and university professor, Lambert is the president of Lambert Leadership Development, The Sea Ranch, California.

Mary Gardner

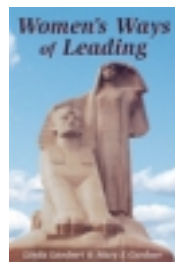

Linda Lambert

In the years that followed, the women's leadership studies were expanded as broader study arenas were identified. In addition to the San Francisco Bay Area, where both women lived, Los Angeles, Seattle, the province of Alberta, Canada, and Malaysia became centers of inquiry. Themes emerged as women from the various places, ages and careers responded to questions, told stories and entered into dialogue with each other. The experiences of the women were remarkably similar, the struggles familiar. Gender issues became predictable, yet the level of maturity significantly influenced how each woman related to the themes. The result of these fifteen years of inquiry and collaboration is the long-awaited book, Women's Ways of Leading.

Editorial Reviews

Women's Ways of Leading invites the reader into a journey of self-discovery informed by a fresh definition of leadership that transcends position, role and hierarchy and proposes leadership as reciprocal learning in purposeful communities.

Lambert and Gardner argue convincingly that this century needs women leaders who commit to values, are conscious of their evolving selves, invoke passion and courage, arouse the imagination, create community and mentor the next generation. Based on the findings of a series of studies examining women leaders across multiple fields of endeavors, the latest findings in brain research and psychology, and case studies from the lives of some of the world's most remarkable women leaders, Women's Ways of Leading sets forth provocative possibilities for a world led equally by enlightened women and men.

California's Public Policy Debate Discuss Reforming the California Initiative Process

What is your opinion about how the current California initiative process works? Does the initiative process seem to serve special interests rather than the public good? What can be done about the California initiative process?

The 2011 AAUW CA study of the California Budget has drawn attention to the dysfunctional state budget process and has recommended reforms for consideration by the legislature. Branches have since indicated interest in doing another study and the selected topic is The California Initiative Process.

You are invited to participate in the Study of The California Initiative Process by attending two information and discussion meetings. The presenters will be AAUW members from Santa Clara County branches who will research the history and effectiveness of the process as it exists now in California. We expect the same lively discussion that is the norm when AAUW members gather to exchange information and express opinions.

Meetings will be held at San Jose Branch, 1165 Minnesota Avenue, San Jose, CA, from 1:30 to 3:30 pm on Tuesday, October 18 and Thursday, October 27.

Please contact Gloria Leonard, 995-5128 or glorialeonard@sbcglobal.net; or Geri Madden, 923-6068 or geri.madden6@gmail.com; if you are interested in participating in this exciting opportunity to contribute to California's public policy debate about the future of our initiative process.

Travel “Armchair” Adventures Schedule! Come and See Why it is One of the Most Popular Interest Groups

First Friday of Month at 7:30 pm, the Terrace of Los Gatos, 800 Blossom Hill Rd

- October 7, 2011 “CLIMBING MT. KILIMANJARO” – Photographer Ken Bloomfield writes: “In 2005 my wife Ellyn and I traveled to Tanzania to conquer the highest point on the African Continent. Overcoming fatigue, altitude sickness, and the elements were just a part of the experience that became one of the hardest things I’ve ever done!”
- November 4, 2011 “CARAVANNING THROUGH AUSTRALIA” – Photographers Gordon and Terri Jalkemo spent nine months traversing the Eastern and Central part of this country from the very northern tip to the most southern part of Tasmania. You will get off the beaten track seeing 100 mile long sandy beaches, snow-clad mountains, tropical rain forests and the desiccated red center of the country where life is finely attuned to survival.
- January 6, 2012 “EXPLORING THE SOUTH PACIFIC BY SAILBOAT” – If you have ever just wanted to sail away in the sunset, you will enjoy sailing with Sue Swackhammer and husband Barry who, after renting out their house for four years, sailed from San Francisco to Australia on a 43 foot sailboat. Sue will describe what cruising sailors see and do as they pass through the Equator, French Polynesia, the Cook Islands, Western Samoa, Tonga and Fiji.
- February 3, 2012 “A VIKING RIVER CRUISE TO RUSSIA” – Travel with photographer Brad Hinckley as he travels to Red Square and the Kremlin in Moscow, with a visit to the nearby Sergiev Posad Monastery, the spiritual center of Russian Orthodoxy. Then it is on with the river cruise as they pass trees, trees and more trees and 17 locks on the way to his final destination, St. Petersburg, the city and palaces that Peter the Great planned and built – an experience in opulence and craftsmanship.

Support Access to Preventive Care and Contraception!

We have some good news and we have some bad news. The good news is the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is considering adopting the Institute of Medicine's (IOM) recommendations that women's preventive health care be completely covered by any new health insurance plans under the new health care reform law!

The bad news, unfortunately, is that efforts are underway to expand "religious refusal" exemptions. If expanded, certain employers would be exempt from having to provide coverage for contraceptive services to their female employees if the employer is opposed to contraception.

An expanded exemption would allow an employer to deny their employees access to care that doctors, medical associations, and the IOM consider necessary. Besides, with or without an employer exemption, if an employee is opposed to contraception on religious grounds, she's unlikely to fill a prescription for birth control. But these exemptions are also a little sinister.

Religious refusal provisions allow the decision-makers at "religious employers" to determine what sort of contraception, if any, their female employees will have access to. If the existing religious refusal exemption is expanded, it would create a broad definition for "religious employers," and could impact all employees at some schools, hospitals, charities, and elsewhere – even if the employee does not share the faith of their employer.

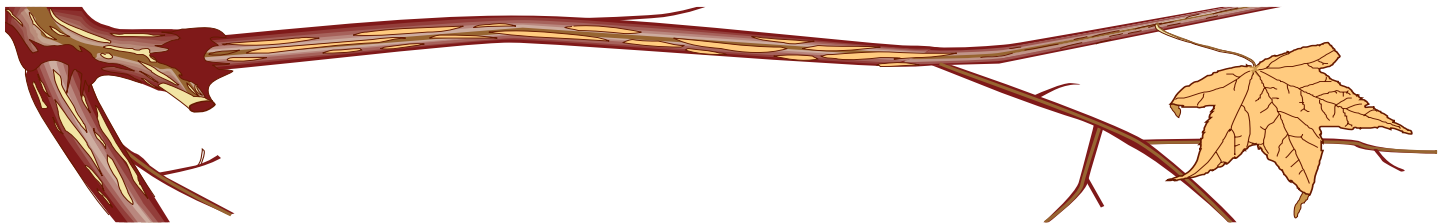

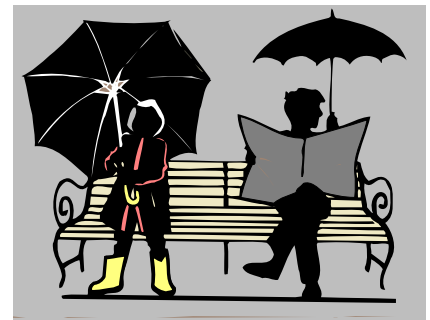

Here's more good news, however: HHS is currently waiting to hear from the public! That's right – AAUW has a chance for input, both as an organization and as individual members and e-advocates.

Contact HHS (Health and Human Services) by email or call to express your concern.

Send a comment to: U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, 200 Independence Ave. S.W., Washington, D.C. 20201; or call 877 696-6775 to voice an opinion.
